

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

RICHARD JEWELL, et al,

Plaintiff,

v.

ALBERTO GONZALEZ, et al,

Defendants.

C.A. 97-408 Erie

NOTICE OF DEPOSITION

To: ALL DEFENDANTS

Pursuant to Rules 26 and 30 (b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, notice is given that on Wednesday, April 6, 2005, beginning at 10:00 A.M. Plaintiffs' counsel will take the deposition by oral examination of the person designated by the Attorney General and the Bureau of Prisons to testify on their behalf with respect to the following items:

1. The reason or reasons federal prisoners were not categorically prohibited from viewing R-rated movies prior to enactment of the Zimmer Amendment.
2. All penological interests that were impacted by the viewing of such movies by BOP inmates prior to enactment of the Zimmer Amendment.
3. The means by which BOP prison officials (prior to Zimmer) could control or regulate the showing of R-rated movies to inmates (and, thereby, protect legitimate penological interests), such as prohibiting specific movies from being shown to prisoners.

4. The impact that controlling or regulating R-rated movies (prior to Zimmer) had on prison resources, staff, or other aspects of the operations of BOP institutions.

5. The means by which the BOP prison officials could now control or regulate the showing of R-rated movies to inmates short of categorically banning such movies if the Zimmer Amendment or other federal legislation did not preclude the showing of such movies.

6. The impact that controlling or regulating the showing of R-rated movies to inmates rather than categorically banning such movies would now have on prison resources, staff, or other aspects of the operations of BOP institutions if the Zimmer Amendment or other federal legislation did not preclude the showing of such movies.

7. The identity of the legitimate penological interests that are served by categorically banning the showing of R-rated movies in BOP prisons and the extent to which those interests are served.

8 Whether the categorical banning of R-rated movies in BOP prisons is an exaggerated response to legitimate penological interests.

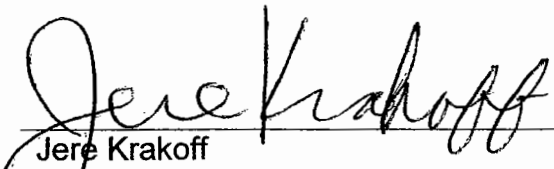

9. The existence of ready or easy alternatives available to BOP inmates in conjunction with the viewing of movies.

10. Whether the BOP administration or other BOP officials were consulted by Representative Zimmer or other federal legislators prior to the inclusion in Zimmer Amendment of a ban against the showing of R-rated movies.

11. The above questions (with the exception of item 10) will be asked in the context of BOP prisons, in general, and FCI McKean, in particular.

This deposition will be taken at the Department of Justice, 901 E. Street, N.W., Washington D.C.
